TO DISTANT SUBSCRIBERS.

From and after the first day of January, 1875, under the late act of Congress, the postage must be prepaid by us on all papers sent to subscribers out of the county. On all subscriptions paid in advance we will pre-pay the postage and forward at our regular rates. As we do not feel disposed to continue the paper to those in arrears, and lose both subscription and postage, we thus give timely notice, that all of the above-mentioned class of subscribers who wish the paper continued after the 1st day of January next, may have abundant time to settle up back dues and pay in advance for another year.

THE GRAND REVOLUTION:

To-day we give to our readers the general results of the elections held in twenty-four States of the Union on Monday and Tuesday of last week. Of a continued Democratic gain we were assured, and even indulged strong hopes of a bare Democratic majority in the next House of Representatives; but as to the actual results, we are free to confess, we are totally surprised. A Democratic Governor elected in Massachusetts and Beast Butler beaten, are in themselves two facts alone suf ficient to astound us. But when we survey the field and examine the dead carcass of Radicalism, and scan closely the weight of corruption with which it was loaded, our surprise is reduced to a small compass indeed. The corrupt and polluted administration of President Grant has received at the hands of the American people an overwhelming rebuke .-The masses have arisen in their might and burst asunder the chains that have bound them. The gordian knot has been sundered, and the nation is free. From one end of the land to the other the joyful notes of victory ring forth in glad acclaim, and liberty and peace once more dawn upon us. Yet in the hour of our supreme victory we are disposed to be magnanimous, and whilst we cannot re frain from an honest expression of our joy at the delivery of the nation from the degradation of Radical misrule, which has been cast upon it like a withering blight, we will not taunt those who have been simply misguided followers of evil leaders in the past, but unto such as repent of their sins we extend the right hand of fellowship and good-will, and ask their aid in carrying forward the present political revolution to its grand and final victory in 1876.

THE CAPITAL QUESTION.

Some of the papers of the Western Panhandle are still terribly concerned about the old question of "capital removal," and rehash it over on every occasion. With the people of this section this is a matter that has never given them any concern. They do not consider that it is any farther from Wheeling to Charleston than from Charleston to Wheeling, and have no desire to see our seat of government put up to be bid for as a financial investment by Wheeling, Parkersburg, or any other place. Charleston, if it is not now, will in all probability in a few years become as accessible as any other point in the State, and there, we say, let the capital remain Otherwise, if it is to be put up and knocked down to the highest bidder, we desire to be informed of "soup-house" scheme whereby to gain the permanent seat ourselves

Rare Devotion.

Five years ago a young Welshman became enamored of and soon betrothed to a young girl in his own country, and desired to marry her and emigrate to the United States to seek a fortune for them both. The young man was but eighteen years of age and his betrothed only fifteen, in view of which facts the prudent parents of the young lady declined to allow the proposed marriage, but suggested that the young man emigrate alone, make his fortune, and then marry the girl of his choice. Perhaps they thought too that the attachment was as between children and not likely to last. and that it had better die out before marriage than after. If they did, however, they were, as parents have been before, and will be again. mistaken. Confiding in the faithfulness of his lady-love and swearing fidelity to her, the young man left his home, came to this country and settled in this county, where he has been working hard from that to this with the one object in view. A few weeks ago he sent money to his betrothed, and we suppose assurance to her parents that he was now able to take care of her. At any rate she left Wales and journeyed to the United States alone, arriving at this city yesterday. She was met in entire Hemocratic deleby her happy lover, and the twain with some of the bridegroom-expectant's friends proseded to the Clerk's Office and procured a license, after which they were married, and ent to the home that the five years' labor of the young man had provided for them. Such devotion cannot be rewarded by a life of happine for the love that will remain faithful during five years of separation will smooth over all the roush places in the earthly journey .- Cumberland News, 27th ult.

Grant Hears the News.

When the returns from Ohio and Indians reached the president, together with the fact that some lunatic had put "for rent" on the White House, Grant asked Babcock what it all meant. "Notice to quit," responded brifly the High Custodian of the Public Grounds. "I won't do it," exclaimed His Excellency, "that house is the only one large enough to hold my family and the picture of them. Where in the devil am I expected to put that picture, I'd like to know?" "Your friends could build you as big a house in St. Louis," humbly suggested Bab. "St. Louis," roared the savior of his country, "that's a pretty idea. Follow Sherman to St. Louis and have him cavorting round as general of the army and me nothing." "It is proposed, your Excellency, to make Sherman your successor and restore to you the generalship of the army."

"Bahcock." exclaimed his Excellency, turning blue, "telegraph Belknap to arm the marine band with navy revolvers, and Childs and Murphy to meet me in Washington, and order Robeson to concentrate himself on Washington-I'll see who vacates."

And His Excellency drank sixteen cocktails and smoked forty cigars, that made even the Indians sneeze and shed tears.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

From the expressions of opinions on Tuesday's elections, as contained in some of the eading papers of the country, we make the following brief extracts:

[New York Herald.]

General Grant, who led the Republican party into power two years ago with the largest majority, perhaps, ever given to a President; may feel this morning, as he reads the returns of the November elections, that he has been like the Prodigal Son, and has squandered a precious political inheritance. Whatever the causes, the result is decisive. * * * The defeat of Butler gives a poetic sequel to the Democratic triumph, and is the one isolated event which will give the greatest satisfaction to the American People. It closes the career of the ablest, most persistent and most daring of the leaders of the Republican party, of the one man who represented in his own person the animosities, the mistakes and the audacities of Republicanism in its hour of arrogant triumph. This election is not merely a victory but a revolution. The United States pronounces in favor of conservative purposes. We are weary of war and its bloody instructions. The practical lessons to be learned cannot fail to be of the very gravest importance. The canvass closes the political career of General Grant.

|New York Tribune.| The verdict of the country against Grautism is delivered. There were only two great questions before the people at this election .-One was whether the Administration deserves the public confidence, and the other was whether it ought to be perpetuated. They have both been answered in the negative, so loudly that even the President must hear the verdict. * * * This is the end of Grant ism. It is not the revival of the rebellion, nor the definitive rehabilitation of the Democratic party. It simply eliminates Grantism from politics as an impertinent factor, and leaves the two parties confronted-so evenly matched that both must hereafter be careful to make no mistakes. The future belongs to the one who shall carn it.

[New York World.] Grant's pretorian phalanx has been broken. His "Third Term" banner has been captured and reversed for a scoff and a hissing. The bummers of his army, the spoilers of the South, have been compelled to slacken their hold where the prey has not been wrested from their teeth. * * Yet this is only the first great battle in a long campaign. It is won triumphantly. Yet there are others to be won. Victory has been tied, with all her garlands on, to the standards of the Democracy by faithful hands which have successfully planted those standards in the forefront of this great battle. It is a victory for free trade; a victory for hard money; a victory for home rule. [New York Times.]

The result of the elections yesterday in this and other Eastern States will not be a surprise to anybody, except perhaps a few persons at Washington, and it certainly will not surprise any of our readers, who have been kept tolerably well informed as to the causes which inevitably tended to produce the present overthrow of the Republican party. All that could be done honorably to avert this defeat has been done by us, but since the last Presidential election, many of the party leaders have been deaf alike to advice and remonstrance. They have apparently believed that the people would quietly submit to anything and everything, and that the party which they represented was indestructable. Nothing short of the events which we record this morning could have opened their eyes to the truth. * * * It will be the lot of the President to discover, in common with many great men who have gone before him, that foolish flatterers and venal newspapers cannot turn sside the current of public opinion .-The truths which he and his immediate supporters refused to hear from the lips of friends they must now listen to to-day from the peo-ple at the polls. * * * If the Republicans are defeated in six or seven of the ten Massachusetts districts, it is a comfort to decent men to know that one of the slaughtered candidates is Mr. B. F. Butler .-Happily the severest floods carry away the most offensive matter.

[New York Sun 1 The indignation of the people as expressed through the ballot boxes yesterday has shivered Grant's administration to atoms. The overthrow is complete and terrific. It is impossible to enumerate the names of the great mass of hypocrites, adventurers, and rogues which the work of Monday and Tuesday has put under the sod never to rise again.

[Boston Journal.] The result is a significant overthrow in many senses, but it does not mean that the old Damocratic party has taken even a temporary lease of power in Massachusetts .-Thousands of Republicans voted yesterday with the Democrats because they were dissatisfied with grievances which are mainly the outgrowth of Butlerism. * * * That the result is disastrous to the Republican organization, as a party, it would be folly to deny. The loss of Congressmen, from whatever cause it may have arisen, is most damaging, especially in view of the victories accomplished by the opponents of the administration in other States. That it denotes important changes in the political future of the country is certain.

[Boston Advertiser.]

Part of the falling off, and not a small part. was directly owing to causes for which the Administration is responsible. Outside of all considerations of the popularity or fitness of the candidates, the Republicans would not vote in a way that could be construed as an endorsement of the means by which the Administration has made its power felt in Mas-* * The defeat of some of sachusetts. * our members of Congress is to be deeply regretted, but it is the price we have to pay for what we devoutly trust will result in a political regeneration of the Commonwealth.

[Philadelphia Press.]

The National results of the struggle are not so pleasant to record. State after State has lost ground, and the next House of Representatives is Democratic probably by a majority of 45.

[Philadelphia Age-]

From all appearances at the time of going to press, the Democracy has carried the State of Pennsylvania. A feeling of security to be followed by the restoration of industrial activity and easier times may now be looked for throughout the country, and our people will obtain, as the reward for their exertions in this great election, that relief which their long suffering and much tired patience so

[Philadelphia North American.]

How deeply we deplore the untoward result of this contest we need scarcely say. We believe that it would have better comported with interests of the nation to have continued the ruling power in the hands that led the country from slavery to freedom, and from civil war to peace and reunion. But it is through adversity of this kind that great organizations are led to strengthen and purify themselves for achievements, demanding high er powers than they had previously developed. [Philadelphia Inquirer.]

The worst feature of yesterday's elections in general is that the Forty-fourth Congress, we fear, will probably show a slight Demperatic majority. If this should prove to be the case it can be ascribed only to the fact that at the last session a Republican majority refused to grant proper relief to the depressed business interests of the country.

[Washington Republican.] However the November elections may have gone, however they may have affected the next Congress, it is not denied by any one that the Republican party has still the major ity of the country, and that if it shall be led as it ought to led, its victories in the future will surpass any that it has won in the past, In the defeats which we fear we have met, we see the omen of future victory. The Republican party is still the party of the country, and it cannot be defeated and the Republic live.

[Washington Chronicle.] These telegrams justify the conclusion that the House of Representatives of the Forty fourth Congress will be Democratic. Probably a majority of the States will be represented by Democratic delegations in that body, rendering it nocessary for the Republicans to elect the next President by the popular vote, or permit the National Government to go into the hands of the Democracy after the fourth of March, 1877.

lying on the East side of the Shenandeah river, in Jefferson county, West Virginia. The public road lending from Keyes' Ferry to Hillsboro, passes through the centre of this tract. It has on it a [Washington Star.] It cannot be denied that the Republican party has just now a look of demoralization and is well watered with fine Springs. The greater portion of it has not been cut off since 1840, and has a large growth of Chestnut Timber upon it at this time. The second tract contains and disintegration extremely encouraging to the hopes of the hungry Democracy. It remains to be seen whether there are brains, tact and courage enough in the Republican lying on the Ezst side of the Snenandoah river, in said county, directly adjacent to the river, and 11 miles above the Bloomery Sash Factory. Will cut forty cords of wood per acre, and thousands of railroad cross-ties may be gotten out from the tract.—It is also well watered, and capable of sub division. It has on it leadership "to pluck this flower, safety, out of this nettle, danger."

[Newark Journal, Dem.] Yesterday's work is, in our belief, equivalent to the salvation of the Republic

[Wilmington (Dol.) Gazette, Dem.] The victory achieved by the Democrats of this county and State is one of the grandest that has ever occurred in the political history of our State. We congratulate the whole people on the result. .

[Cincinnati Gazette, Rep.] The Republican party has sustained the severest reverse it has ever experienced since its accession to power.
